

My family and I enrolled in the "Do Not Call" program enacted by the State of NJ immediately after it became available. I cannot tell you how nice it is to be able to sit and have a peaceful dinner without the phone ringing and disturbing us. It is also wonderful that the phone does not ring and wake up my son when he takes his afternoon nap. I agree that the federal government's "Do Not Call" legislation should be more lax than the state programs. The federal government is too large and too broad to be able to see and understand the individual needs of states and their citizens. More specific legislation is a decision for the local governments to make. The federal government needs to stay out of it.
